SOUTH MALEKULA - CATTLE FARMING

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

Arov Village, on the southern part of Malekula is looking for investors to partner with in the development of a 3,000 hectare of land for cattle farming. Currently half of the area has been used as coconut plantation, which when price of copra drops, the land remains unattended. The long term intension for this project is to fully exploit the area in cattle production and related development activities. Arov village is along the coastal areas with the surrounding terrain mostly flat. Further inland is hilly and mostly covered with virgin forests but does not pose serious challenge to potential expansion. There are 2 rivers running parallel to each other to provide water source for the cattle and other uses. Recent studies on the country's cattle industry confirms there is high demand for beef domestically given growth in the tourism industry and population increase. There is also high demand from international markets given its high quality. For example beef exports between 2012 and 2014 averaged 900 tones annually compared to 329 tones in 2017. This proposal is aimed at supporting the Government's efforts to increase production of cattle ti meet its target of 500,000 cattle heads by 2030. The Vanuatu Government through the Malampa Province will ensure full commitment and all necessary support are provided to this excellent investment opportunity.
